Dear Mr. Newman,

Your interview with Konrad Lorenz aired today on "Speaking Freely" is almost as much a tribute to you as it is to him.

To me he is one of the greatest minds. Having in a minor way duplicated some of his earliest work, I am even more impressed with the point to which he has carried it.

That you could draw so much of him in a single interview and without the most elaborate study of all of his work is something for which we are in your debt and of which I think you should be proud.

Neither my wife nor I uttered a single word for the entire hour!

If this interview was transcribed, I would very much appreciate a transcript for myself and one for another. If it has not been, is it possible to get a sound tape?

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
